Assumptions behind the dance of the eye and the hand

As a teacher I begin with several assumptions.
Any student coming to me has 3 sets of skills to be nurtured.

First, the student has the skills of the eye - when they look at things, what do they see?

Second, the student has the set of skills of the hand - how are they able to connect what they see to the brush, the ink and the paper?

Third, the student has the set of skills of their heart/mind - how are their actions connected to the source of their energy, their spirit, the Qi?

It is from these assumptions that I now offer the dance of the eye and the hand.

These instructional videos with printable models are based on the concept that to learn Chinese brush painting one must train not only one's hand but one's eye as well.

The understanding is that continued learning is a tension between what the eye can see and what the hand can do.

And that the dance of the eye and the hand will always be in play.

That tension is always there.

Mastery is a process.

Not a destination.

About brush painter Bob Schmitt

I am a life long student and teacher of the traditions of Chinese brush painting.

I began my study of brush painting in 1962 watching what was then educational tv. I would sit in front of the tv after school with my brush and ink and learn basic forms. I practiced most of my life unschooled.

In the late 90s I was fortunate to begin to study with Lok Tok, Yitong Lok of Toronto and Hong Zhang in Minneapolis—three incredibly gifted Chinese brush painters and teachers.

Since 1998 I have been a weekly student of Hong Zhang, a native of Shanghai, schooled there and now living in Bloomington, Minnesota.

I have also had a long distance relationship with Chinese master Lok Tok (now deceased) and his son Yitong Lok.

In 2001, all three of these teachers endorsed my beginning to teach Chinese painting to students here in Minneapolis.

Currently I have 40 students who before the COVID 19 pandemic came to my house for weekly instruction in Chinese calligraphy and paintings.

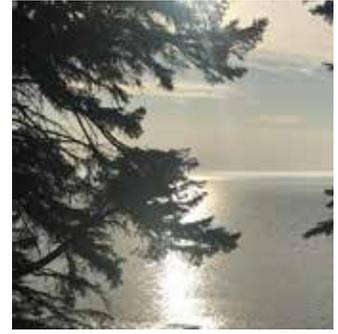

I also have a weekly painting practice.

an introduction

photographic inspiration

The series of paintings called 4 superior mornings (below) began with the photos (above) which I took one May at a cabin on the shore of Lake Superior just south of Gooseberry Falls State Park.

The genesis of the series was wanting to pay homage to Monet and what he was able to accomplish with his paintings of haystacks in differing lights.

The resulting paintings capture four distinct moods of alake that has so many of them. For the purpose of this intensive I am naming each with the intent that each lesson in this intensive will expose you to a number of techniques and strategies to accomplish creating these four distinct conditions and on this, indeed this Great Lake.

undercurrents and a little sparkle

The first atmosphere we will work with is that of Lake Superior showing us its under currents and with just a little bit of sparkle provided by sun and partly cloudy conditions.

To do this painting requires slowly building up layer after layer of soft color. Working both with a hard hair landscape brush and a hake brush available at many local art supply stores or online.

As you will see in the video, one needs to plan in quite a number of periods of letting the piece dry during the process. Sometime fully dry, sometimes partially dry to gain different effects.
